How Do We Do It?

The power of Moovit stems from our cooperation with our community of riders around the world. We start with complete schedule-based transit information from local transit agencies and mix in real-time data about current times and conditions from other riders en route nearby. Just by using Moovit, you're helping others plan their transit (and lives) better. Along the way, riders can also send live reports about the line or station to let others know what to expect.
